Re: DNA Testing in the Walsh Case

Dear Detective Smith:

As we discussed during our phone conversation earlier today, in order for our laboratory to complete DNA analysis on the bloodstained section of automotive carpet, we would require a control exemplar from the victim. It is my understanding that a fragment of human mandible may be available. This item would be acceptable as a victim control sample.

Dear Mr. Smith:

On January 19, 1995 our laboratory received from you the following five (5) items of evidence:

- 1) Box of tape from machete
- 2) Machete and sheath
- 3) Envelope of taped debris from machete
- 4) Carpet standard
- 5) Standard of A.W. head hair

Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA) extractions were conducted on stains found on the machete (Item #2); however, no detectable DNA of human origin was obtained. PCR analysis with HLA DQ α produced no results. No additional comparisons have been made in this analysis since no results were obtained from the primary item of interest. The remainder of the packaging and evidence is enclosed.

If you have any questions please do not hesitate to contact me at the number below.

Sincerely,
